SETTING OTHER PEOPLE RIGHT. Pitfall Into Which the Well-Meaning Sometimes Fall.

Occasionally you may set a person right, but be sure you know the person, and don't get a reputation for that sort of thing. People like to be right, and get right, but not set right, at least in a too direct way. Of course we are concerned here with polite society. You are expected to set people right in politics, business and other impolite circles, and set hard. The way some contractors talk to their employes who dig sewers for them is, to say the least, impolite, and the compliments passed and repassed between irate rulers and the houses of representatives are far from pretty, but in these spheres it is considered not bad form to set folks right. Not so in the charmed circle of polite society. Here a correction must be so inferential that it will not hit for several days, and then feel like a cotton bat. Never by any means correct a pronunciation, for you will likely never make peace with the outraged party. Nothing less intricate tthan a Chinese character may be disputed. Nobody is annoyed at that. We once knew a truly good minister, who had a country charge, where the people were fairly well educated, though they did not always express themselves in sentences strictly grammatical and literary. The rector was a stickler for good language, and had a way of setting everybody right while in convers..tion. As his people thought he ought to set them right in other lines exclusively, his stay among them was brief. -Newark News.

LITTLE CHANCE FOR BUSINESS. Man With Golden Opportunity Had

Called at Unfortunate Time. "Now, my dear sir," earnestly began the suave stranger, with the up-tilted cigar and unauthenticated diamond, "these handsomely engraved bonds of the Consolidated Mexican Milkweed Rubber Company, which are positively guaranteed to return a 69 per cent. semi-annual dividend, and—"

"I don't really s'pose you can do much dealing in 'em around here, Mr. Slicksmith," frankly interrupted the landlord of the tavern at Skedee Corners. "You see, the only man in the community who might otherwise take an interest in your glittering proposition has been for some time engaged in the payment of an election bet wherein he was solemnly sworn to roll a peanut eight miles by means of a toothpick, which, speaking in round numbers, will be likely to keep him so busy till along about the latter part of next May that he won't have time to make a fool of himself in any other way. Looks considerable like rain, off to the south'rd, don't it?"-Puck.

Getting Along All Right.

A young Japanese in one of our institutions of learning, having acquired a very good knowledge of English, went out to deliver a lecture in that language. On his return, says the Hartford Courant, one of the instructors asked if he had a pleasant time. He replied: "Yes, very." "How did you get on with the lecture?" "Oh, quite well, but the audi ence smiled at some things when I could see no jokes." "Could you give me an instance?" "Well, I opened my lecture by saying that although I was new in English language I thought I could deliver the goods; and they all smiled." Now, doubtless the audience smiled at what they thought was the ready way in which a foreigner had adapted a bit of American slang; but he did not understand the smile because he thought he was speaking good English.

Costume of German Jurists.

"The black robe and the cap belong to the outfit of a lawyer in the German metropolis," writes an American tourist from that place, "and when the lawyer attains the dignity of judge the collar on his robe is changed from silk to velvet. When this law providing for the 'guard of dignity' was passed the prescribed dress for practicing attorneys included a white necktie. Years ago this custom ceased to be observed, because, as lawyers tell me, it was expensive and troublesome. There is one judge in Berlin, however, who insists on the proper dress, and lawyers who appear before him must expect, if necktie be black, to be turned away with the remark: 'Your cravat is not white."

The Surprised Highwayman.

A highwayman stepped out behind a fashionable young woman and hit her a tremendous blow across the side of the head with a piece of gas pipe, expecting to send her to the ground unconscious and rob her of her valuables. Imagine his surprise when, instead of a dull thud, a muffled scream and a fall to the pavement, the weapon bounded back as though it had struck a large piece of rubber and the victim of the attack turned about angrily with: "Beast! What do you mean by trying to disarrange my hair!"-Lamar (Ga.) Democrat.

Fortunate Indeed. "When I am inspired," exclaimed the youthful poet, "I get fearfully agitated. My breath comes in quick, so convulsive gasps. My hair stands on 101 end. I pace up and down restlessly. A fever seizes me. My hands tremble, my eyes goggle. Throughout my frame runs a violent electrical quiver. I gesticulate madly, I-"

They listened, tense, rapt. "How lucky," remarked a true friend, "that you are inspired so sel-

Keep Them Up.

Complaint has been made to me several times about chickens running at large and doing injury to gardens in State of Missouri vs. William Web- on note. town.

I at first thought it not worth while to say anything about it It seemeed to me that any body would know better than to let his chickens destroy property of that kind, when one good garden is likely to be worth more than all the chickens in town. Some have suggested that such a nuisance would justify taking the head off of every such trespasser, but that might raise disputes about who the carcass of the offending bird belong to, and to bury the poor bird in the potters field might be painful. It, therefore seems better to obey the law and enforce the ordinance which is as follows:

"It is hereby declared to be unlawful for any person or persons within the city of Oregon, owning, controlling, or having the custody of any cattle, sheep, hogs, horses mules, asses, goats or other such animals-geese, chickens or other such fowles, to permit them to run at large, within the corporate limits of the city of Oregon, and it is de-clared to be the duty of the marshall to take up and empound any such horses, asses or cattle found running loose upon any street, alley, highway, vacant lot, public park or square, shoool ground or other public place within the city-and the costs of such empounding, taking up and caring for such animal shall be taxed as costs against the owner of such animal so taken up.

"It shall also be the duty of the marshal to make complaint against any such owner of any such animal running "Any person willfully violating any of the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

I will add the punishment is a fine of one to one hundred hollars, or imprisonment one to ten days or both such fine and imprisonment, and if any further complaint is made of chickens, or the other animals mentioned—being permited on the streets, or to run at large in town-I assure you that I will take a fiendish delight in reminding those guilty of such tricks that it pays to be good citizens.

G. W. MURPHY, Mayor.

Interest in Tobacco.

"It is an ill wind that blows nobody good," saith the the ancient saw. So it happens that when the night riders operated to the detriment of Kentucky they also operated for the benefit of this particular section of country. Kentucky tobacco growers who were desirous of dwelling in peace, sought tobacco lands elsewhere. Some of them came to Platte county and planted the lands that had yielded famous tobacco before the war. The experiments in the neighborhood of Weston were so successful and encouraging that the subject has become one for public attention and there is now afoot a movement to make the tobacco industry one of the big features of our agriculture, just as it was in the early days, only upon the latest and most scientific lines.

The entire section tributary to St. Joseph has tobacco lands of value, and that the crop is profitable was shown last week at the St. Joseph Ad Club luncheon by Mr. Hillix, of Weston, who stated that 10 acres of tobacco would yield as much profit as 100 acres of wheat, raised on land of the same worth.

To further the movement a big meeting of interested agriculturists of the surrounding country, including those of Kansas and Nebraska, is planned. The purpose of this meeting is to interest the farmers in tobacco culture, with a view to developing the possibilities in this direction, and there is promise of at least a successful cam-paign of experiments—S. Joseph News-Press.
